The Heart of the Matter
When we think of institutions, we often think of places where delinquent, defective, or dependent people need help and a place to stay away from society. This could well describe the institution of marriage today—an arrangement to pair together delinquent, defective, and dependent people, not for a lifetime but merely for a time. For many marriages, this definition is all too true. But it doesn’t have to describe your marriage. The institution of marriage has fallen on hard times—divorce rates are soaring, men and women are testing the marriage waters by living together first, to say nothing about society’s attempts to redefine marriage to include same-sex couples. But marriage is a divinely designed institution, and if marriage is to thrive in an increasingly hostile culture, then we must first consult the architect of marriage . . . God.

Discovering the Way
1. Introduction to the Series
This series on marriage is most applicable for those already married or soon to be married; however, because our study will focus on the Bible, it is practical for anyone—married or not.

2. Statement of the Need
Why a series on marriage? Marriages are hurting. Homes are suffering. Families are fracturing.

3. Observations of Scripture (Genesis 2:18–25 and Proverbs 24:3–4)
God created men and women in His image for the purpose of marriage, which can only be built on the divine foundation of wisdom, understanding, and knowledge.

Starting Your Journey
Three applications for the home emerge from this study. The time to start is now. The method to follow is God’s. And the person to change is you.